Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 21,28-35,41-43 and 46 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement to the extent that the claims are directed to the prevention of a bone fracture. The claims contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

Burden on the Examiner for Making a Rejection Under 35 U.S.C. § 112 First

Paragraph

As set forth in In re Marzocchi, 169 USPQ 367, 370 (CCPA 1971):

"[A] [s]pecification disclosure which contains teaching of manner and process of making and using the invention in terms corresponding to the scope to those used in describing and defining subject matter sought to be patented must be taken as in compliance with enabling requirement of first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112 unless there is reason to doubt the objective truth of statements contain therein which must be relied on for enabling support; assuming that sufficient reason for such doubt exists, a rejection for failure to teach how to make and/or use will be proper on that basis, such a rejection can be overcome by suitable proofs indicating that teaching contained in specification is truly enabling." (emphasis added).

Here, the objective truth of the statement that a bone fracture may be prevented through the mere administration of the claimed actives is doubted because clearly the prevention of a bone fracture due to causes such as trauma would not have been reasonable expected to be possible as it has not been shown that the claimed methods provide for bone structure that is impervious to any and all such forces that would cause a bone to break.

Accordingly, the claims are deemed properly rejected.

None of the claims are currently in condition for allowance.
